

The Explorer's sheet

Natural Disasters

What are man-made disasters?

Landslides, avalanche, forestfires...the frequency of these disasters has increased. Do you think humans have a role here? If yes, how?

See the image below. This is the waiting at the highest peak of the world- Mt Everest.

“When people have to wait in queues, they risk running short of oxygen - and may not have enough oxygen left on their way down.”

Does it make sense? Share your opinion.

Image and quote courtesy- BBC.com

Unleash the writer in you

If you think you have written/ collected interesting information on the topics above and wish to share with others, send your unique article in word document along with the relevant images (in jpeg format) to contactpracticenlearn@gmail.com. We will be happy to publish it. Do remember to share your name, age, email ID, school name and a picture along with your work.